2 Information and ticket purchases

The programme, dates, venues, times, prices, categories and age rating are published through the festival's official channels.

Tickets must be purchased through the sales outlets identified by the organiser. Before completing a purchase, buyers should check the date, concert, category, seats and total price, including any applicable fees.

Ticketing platforms may have their own terms relating to their services, without excluding the promoter's legal responsibilities.

The use of tickets in third-party commercial campaigns, competitions or promotional activities requires the organiser's permission, without prejudice to uses permitted by law.

3 Admission and conduct at the venue

Admission requires a valid ticket and compliance with the age rating, safety rules and conditions published in advance.

A ticket may be transferred before validation, unless specific conditions have been stated in advance. After validation, it may not be used by another person.

Attendees must respect the areas and seats corresponding to their tickets and comply with lawful instructions from the organiser and security personnel.

The organiser may refuse admission or require attendees to leave in circumstances permitted by law, including violent behaviour or behaviour that compromises safety or the performances.

Rules concerning objects, food, drinks, photography and recording are published on the website and at venue entrances, with due regard for legal exceptions and health and accessibility needs.

Admission of minors is subject to the age rating and accompanying-adult requirements published for the festival.

Information about accessibility, available seating and services, and procedures for requesting assistance is provided on the festival website.

5 Changes cancellations and refunds

In the event of cancellation, postponement, a change of venue, programme or headline artists, or interruption of a performance, the rights and procedures provided for by the legislation in force apply.

These rights are assessed in relation to the night and performance covered by the ticket purchased.

Where a refund is due, it will be made under the conditions and within the time limits prescribed by law. Procedures will be communicated through the festival's official channels and sales outlets.

Force majeure situations are assessed in accordance with the law and do not automatically exclude the right to a refund.

The organiser may make necessary operational adjustments without prejudice to buyers' rights. Updates to these terms do not override rights associated with tickets already purchased.
